Information additionnelle

Description: "Santika" is a Sanskrit term which literally translates to "harmony".

It is a particularly apt name as it describes beautifully the manner in which this Aussie classic interacts with the wind & sea.

She is a 42TM Schooner, professionally built in steel, to a multi-chine design combining the ideas of two great designers; Alan Payne & Len Hedges. These two legends of Australian boat building were noted for their ability to marry traditional lines with modern materials and they created designs that were practical, efficient and sea kindly. Her builder, Alan Miell considers her the best yacht he had built and recalls that she "sailed like a witch!"

She has Australian registration and a comprehensive inventory.

Fully re-fitted inside & out between 2009-2012 and last surveyed 2011, this yacht is an excellent opportunity for the person who wants to set out sailing immediately, all the hard work has been done. With all major

systems having recently received
complete overhauls
and with minimal
hours logged,
reliability
is assured, so crucial to peace of mind at sea and that is exactly what Santika
affords, underway and
at rest.

With comprehensive inventory, well
appointed accommodations
and ruggedly built in
steel, she is well suited to both lengthy expeditions or
casual harbour
hopping. Her shoal
draft affords her
access to places many monohull yachts are excluded from. The low air draft of a
schooner rig allows
her to carry more sail
in higher winds
meaning reefing is required to be done
less frequently, a definite bonus in areas with fluky air currents as when gusts arrive, she merely digs a shoulder
in and gains impetus
with minimal

heeling.

Wide decks and solid life-rails put the mind at ease when moving around on deck. With classic good looks and all the charm and romance of yesteryear combined with modern innovation, Santika is a character filled, comfortable and confidence inspiring passage maker.

Circumstances dictate that we must achieve a quick sale for Santika and have significantly reduced the price. We invite inspection from the most discerning buyers. All reasonable offers will be considere.
