|                 | The first Hunter 33 was built in 1977 and designedby John Cherubini of Hunter Marine (USA). Itssimple hull design, a fin keel with spade rudder, hasproven the test of time as a reliable, relatively fasthull with unmatched stability and handling.            |                   |  |
|                 | The masthead sloop design appeals to many sailorswhich is why the Hunter 33 is so popular. Thisparticular Hunter 33 looks particularly good. Theseller says she's been in the water almost 2 years andwas removed twice for a haul and wash and bottompaint. |                   |  |
